I will be with you - Psalm 46

(Oh! The Wonder of that Assurance!)

(A devotion adapted by Lutheran Media, originally written by Pastor Greg Graham in the LCA book "Refreshment for each day".)

God is our shelter and strength, always ready to help in times of trouble.
So we will not be afraid, even if the earth is shaken

and mountains fall into the ocean depths;
even if the seas roar and rage,
and the hills are shaken by the violence.

(verses 1-3)

There was a time when I hoped I would have a garden wedding. And there was a song I wanted played. It was by a group called Led Zeppelin and was entitled 'Thank you'. In it were the lines 'If the sun refused to shine, I would still be loving you. If the mountains crumbled into the sea, there would still be you and me.' However, God had other plans. I was married in a church, and we didn't have Led Zeppelin playing!

Some years later I became a Christian and began reading the Bible. Imagine my surprise when I found the words of the song reflected in the Bible.

I'm still very much in love with my wife. But there is also someone else I love very much, and someone who loves me even more. God says to me, 'If the sun refused to shine, I would still be loving you. If the mountains crumbled into the sea, there would still be you and me.' There would also be all those who are in Jesus Christ.

Thank you, heavenly Father, for your promise to be always at my side. Amen.

From the editor...

I've come out of retirement to edit the last @Glynde of the year. Oh the wonder of it all - I could still do it!!

I well remember the look of wonder on my children's faces the first time they saw one of our baby budgies hatching. A birth - new life! Oh the wonder of it all!

Oh the wonder of it all when my daughter walked into my work place unexpectedly from Townsville, carrying our first grandchild. I'm sure my face competed with Eli's (on the cover) on that occasion. What joy, what wonder! My former colleagues still remind me of the look on my face on that occasion.

But then there are times of great stress and sadness when the last thing we imagine is wonder.

Another grandchild born in a foreign country - but will she live or die? Arrangements to fly her to Australia - stress, grief, worry, can't pray. Then a friend says, 'You've had enough, haven't you? I'll pray for you!' Oh the wonder of it all!

And at Christmas... The wonder of a birth, but a birth to die. Why? For me!! Oh the wonder of it all! The promise that that baby, Jesus, would be with me forever, loving me, caring for me, giving me friends that when I can't pray they will pray for me. And... the wonder, the assurance that he is with me forever in life and in death. Oh the wonder of it all!

Thank you Fleur and Jess for bringing us our magazine throughout the year - what champs!! They join me in wishing you all a Christmas filled with wonder as we celebrate the indescribable gift of Jesus' birth.

Happy Christmas!

From Pastor Wayne...

Hi! Our theme for this month's @Glynde is "The Wonder of it All". It's a great theme for the Christmas season, and Colleen chose this theme in the light of "a photo of Eli at the Christmas Pageant where his eyes and mouth are competing with each other to express his wonder". Apparently, Eli looked up and when he saw that Santa was coming his whole face expressed his wonder at what was happening....

This photo made me stop and think: "Have we a similar wonder at the coming of God's Son", his coming into the world as a tiny baby at that first Christmas?" 😊 Probably not!

We are so used to focusing on the trappings of Christmas that we often forget to think about, let alone wonder at, the coming of God's Son into this world at that first Christmas. Think about it.... What's your focus on as you head towards Christmas? Let me mention just some of the things that tend to preoccupy our thinking as we head towards Christmas:

- *Putting up the Christmas tree, and decorating it
- *Writing a Christmas letter to send to family and friends
- *Making lists of Christmas presents to buy for loved ones
- *Shopping for these presents
- *Buying food for the Christmas meal
- *Tidying the house for Christmas visitors

*Preparing the meal for these visitors
And the list goes on and on....

This year, let's stop and wonder often as we look at the baby in the manger. For this Christmas gift from God is life-changing. This is how much God loves you and me and everyone: enough to send His Son, part of His very self, into this world as a tiny, dependent, crying little baby. This baby grew to be the man Jesus, who told us about God's love for us, and show us God's love by his actions. And then, on the cross, he willingly suffered and died "for our sins", so that as we are linked to him by our baptism and our faith we are His forgiven children. As John puts it in that passage that so many of us know so well:

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, so that whoever believes in him may not be lost but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

Have you got a nativity scene with the baby Jesus in a manger somewhere? Or if you haven't, maybe you could buy one: it's not a bad investment amidst the trinkets and the baubles that we buy at Christmas. Put the nativity scene out somewhere prominently in your home, and spend time looking at it with open mouthed wonder, like Eli did when he saw Santa coming at the Christmas pageant!

Think about what God did for you through that baby in the manger, and meditate on what his birth means for you and the whole world. Let your mouth drop open and your eyes stare in wonder at the coming of God's Son into this world for us.

May you and yours have a blessed Christmas, a Christmas that revolves around the birth of the baby in the manger.

Love Wayne

Holy Nativity – Judith Searle

Christmas time is here once more,
as a quick look around does show.
Lights, displays and decorations gal-
lore;
Christmas cheer everywhere you go.

Many a display has my eyes allured
as I sought for a scene most dear.
In some I found it in a place obscured,
but in others it did not even appear.

Where is that lowly resting place,
that stable, humble and bare?
Where is a mother's smiling face and the worshippers gathered there?

Has Christ been removed from the season
that bears His own name?
Can people really have forgotten the reason why to earth the Saviour came?

Do they think that Santa's giving could surpass that of God on high,
Who sent His Son among the living on a cruel cross to die?

Why have people forgotten this birth that offers eternal life to everyone?
How can they seek peace on this earth
if it's not through God's own Son?

So, let me end with a challenge for all those who this message hear.
Let's restore that nativity, poor and rude,
to real prominence this year.

From the Chairperson...

the wonder of it all

Advent is a time when we prepare with joy and wonder for the coming of Jesus. We unite together, waiting, waiting, waiting.... We wait with wonder. We hear the Christmas story and follow the wonder of Mary as she learned that she would give birth to a son, and name him Jesus. We hear her song of praise and we too wonder at the mystery and mercy and love of God. What an amazing story we have to share with each other, with our friends, with our community! Let our fresh wonder be an infectious part of Christmas this year.

In the past month or so we have welcomed a number of visiting pastors who have filled in for Pastor Wayne as he recovers from surgery. Our thanks go to Pastors Richard Haar, Stephen Haar, Jon Goessling, Ross Schultz, Richard Fox and Geoff Burger. They have given us a rich tapestry of worship during Pastor Wayne's absence and their support has been a great blessing to us.

Malcolm Willcocks has joined us as a Pastoral Support Worker to ensure our ministries can continue to be supported as Pastor Wayne returns to work on light duties. Malcolm brings a deep experience of pastoral work in many congregations and it is wonderful that he can form part of our ministry team at this time.

Our redevelopment proceeds and the progress is exciting to watch week by week as concrete is poured, foundations built, the lift shaft erected and the shape of the new entrances takes form. Thank you to everyone for their ongoing patience and flexibility during this time. It has created challenges, especially on days when it is wet or windy and the walk from the church to the hall for a hot cup of coffee is quite a trek!

We have also had our AGM and elected our office bearers for 2017. Thank you to everyone who came and supported this part of our church business. If you haven't read all the church reports, please take the time to go through them and you will get an amazing picture of the range of activities, ministries and the work and blessings that God provides for our community. It is also a time to thank everyone who has contributed to the many committees, teams, groups and activities that make this place a community of faith, a community which shares time, talent, space and hearts with strangers and friends, and seeks to share the good news of Jesus with everyone. For those who are no longer serving in the same roles into 2017, thank you for the service you have given and may God bless you. For those who have taken up new roles, or are faithfully continuing to serve, may God guide and lead you every day and may your hearts be filled with joy.

Some final, ancient words of reflection from Angelus Silesius (1624 - 1677) as we prepare for Christmas:

If in your heart you make a manger for his birth,
then God will once again
become a child on earth.

Snowpeas

Did you know that snowpeas buy bibles?

Last Wednesday, Marco came to us in the Office with the money raised so far from the growing of his snowpeas. There was just over $360.

Thank you to Marco for all of his hard work and dedication to growing them. And thank you, to all of you for purchasing them.

We have been in contact with "Leading the Way" in Sydney to purchase the solar powered Audio Bibles.

We are looking at purchasing one complete Bible in English, and seeing how many Nuer and Korean New Testaments we can buy.

Hopefully, we may have some of the Nuer Bibles for Rebecca and Nyalam to take to Nyinenyoup. As they are solar powered they are the perfect Bible to take to the villages.

I find I am constantly in awe and wonder at how Glynde can find ways to reach out into the community around us and overseas to share His love.

Thank you to Marco for sharing his passion with us and turning them into bibles!

Wow, the wonder of it all!

Barbara Mattiske

From our Cross Cultural Coordinator...

Wonder ...

1. to think or speculate curiously
2. to be filled with admiration, amazement, or awe; marvel (often followed by at)
3. to doubt

I've read some of the meanings of using the word "wonder" and have listed just a few above - and I am still not sure what kind of wonder I feel at the moment as I start writing.

Yes, I am excited and in awe of the year that has been...

And yes, I am excited to celebrate again the birth of Jesus Christ with new eyes... through the thoughts and conversations with those who come to Playgroup, Mainly Music, Coffee and Chat and English classes.

Last night I held our second Girls Night Out. You know, when I first advertised and asked who would like to come, the wonder I felt, was not of awe and admiration, but of doubt.

How many girls would come this time?

Do they really understand what we are trying to do?

Do they want to be part of this community?

Why did I worry?

God truly blessed our night. There were 20 of us who met together, and wow, the wonder and amazement I experienced when I realised that the majority of girls who came were not the Glynde people who helped, but the mums who come to Playgroup, Mainly Music Coffee and Chat and even English classes!

To watch them and listen to their stories of how they feel being a part of our community were humbling and yet exciting.

Just because we remembered a name, or spoke to them, or listened, or loved them.

It is just the simple things!

That is why they come, and keep coming.

We all want to be loved – and when you have no family around you, the need for that love grows! To know that they appreciate that love and care that we show, changed my doubt to amazing wonder! It was important to be reminded that God tells us simply to love – pray, and leave the rest to Him. To see that happening with these women last night just showed me how wonderful God is. Please keep these women and their families in your prayers as they discover the joy and love of Jesus.

I would just like to thank all who have helped me over this year in sharing God's love with those in our Playgroup, Mainly Music, Coffee and Chat and English classes.

I pray it has been a blessing to you as well as those who come.

I still wonder if I will be continuing in this role next year – but the joy and wonder I have experienced in 2016 has been a special gift to me and I thank those from our wider community who have joined us and shared with me their lives, their dreams and their hopes.

What a gift I have received!

Wow – the wonder of it all!

Meet Malcolm..

Our Pastoral Support Worker

Pastor Russell & his wife, Doris (dec)

Greetings everyone! Some of you may know that from 2010 to 2013 I was employed by the Lutheran Church to support the Aboriginal communities on the Far West Coast of SA. Yalata is one of those communities. I went to Yalata thinking I had much knowledge to impart. I left knowing I had much to learn.

I worked there in support of Pastor Russell Bryant. He was a good teacher and someone I hold in high esteem. Russell is an ordained pastor of the Lutheran Church of Australia. He loves God's word. He likes to have a Bible with him all the time. I would regularly see him sitting somewhere in the community reading his Bible. He has an insatiable thirst for knowing God and how to live God's way as an Aboriginal man in a remote community.

One of the greatest contrasts between Aboriginal society and ours is their centrality of the family in all aspects of life. For them the family is more than parents and children. It includes all living relatives no matter how distant. It also includes a complex system of kinship relations which links an individual to the whole community and indeed, across communities. One's position within the family and kinship system determines their rights, responsibilities and obligations throughout life.

But families can be weird and wonderful things.

The weird part is – we grow-up, unquestioningly, sharing a house with a bunch of people, who are strangely familiar in some ways, but very different in many other aspects. Different people, some of whom we may not like very much, but there we all are, just having to get along the best we can, while all the time observing how wonderful or woeful each of these people are.

Time passes and the members of the family grow older and leave the family home. However, there are regular occasions that draw the family members back together. Some look forward to these coming-togethers. Others turn up – only because its “family” and that's what one is supposed to do. This second group may find themselves looking at the other attendees and wondering if they would ever bother mixing with such people if they weren't related to them. I've caught myself musing on this very point more than once over the years.

I am one of 6 children.

In some ways I know my siblings intimately. I know many of their faults and short-comings. The times they've lied and cheated, been judgemental, acted despicably and the times they let me down. Worse than that, I know that they know all these things, and more, about me!

Growing up, my family's life revolved about the Church, the local Baptist Church in fact. These days, no-one in my family attends a Baptist Church. Two siblings attend the Uniting Church of Australia; another attends a non-denominational community fellowship; one has no interest in Churches of any description; and I'm a Lutheran. Even my parents have moved on and now attend a Church of Christ.

Imagine the interesting discussions, disagreements and occasional argument we have when we get together. But it is at these prickly times that the wonderful part of family shines brightest. Sure we know each other's failings and weaknesses, we disagree on some crucial matters - and in general, there are probably more things driving us apart than holding us together, but we hold together regardless.

Garrison Keillor, well known Lutheran, of "A Prairie Home Companion" radio show fame, spoke of his home town in these terms . . .

"I come home and feel so well understood.
I almost don't have to say a word.
I was not a good person.

I have yelled at my children.
I neglected my parents and was disloyal to loved ones.
I have offended righteous people.
People around here know all this about me,
and yet they still smile and say hello,
and so every day I feel forgiven.
Ask me if it's a good place to live,
and I don't know –
but forgiveness and understanding, that's a beautiful combination."

To my way of thinking this describes a healthy Christian community, and it is to such a community that I have been called for a short time.

I have been made to feel very welcome and accepted as part of God's family here in Glynde. What is more, I have observed the wonderful welcome this family gives to all who come to visit. God only knows how diverse and wonderful this part of his family might become. Wherever he leads, may we follow.
Jesus replied, . . . Anyone who does God's will is my brother and sister and mother." Mark 3:20-21

Here we go to Nyinenyoup!

Today we farewell Rebecca and Nyalam.

Letters of welcome have been written and will be given to them today on your behalf, with Christmas greetings also being sent.

They are leaving this week to begin the journey to Addis Ababa in Ethiopia, then to Gambella, where they will be meeting with Elders of the church who have been researching the prices of peddle sewing machines for Rebecca and Nyalam to purchase. Through your efforts and the efforts of the wider Sudanese Nuer community, over $5,000 has been raised. The money has now been transferred and is ready for the purchases. We pray that the elders have been successful in their negotiations and that the sewing machines will be ready to be taken to Nyinenyoup.

We look forward to hearing how this new industry created with the sewing machines grows. We pray that God will use the machines and the talents of those using them for the benefit of the people, and the village, and the wider community.

Rebecca and Nyalam hope to celebrate Christmas in Nyinenyoup. We pray that God will surround them with love and keep them safe as they travel and that we may share the joy and wonder of Christmas from different sides of the world. To think, that that tiny baby, unites us in faith and inspires us to share is word with all we meet, no matter their skin colour or language.

We keep saying it – wow, the wonder of it all!

Barbara Mattiske

Colours of Faith

The wonders of God's love shown through music.

What does someone do when they have been down and out, when they have been homeless, when they have suffered domestic violence, when they suffer a mental illness, when their self esteem is at an all time low?

It's at times like this that one most needs a helping hand, and the loving hand of someone who loves Jesus.

One of the many helping hands that reached out was our own Rosalie Turner, who helped bring the joy of singing to the Lord into their lives. This group, with heads held high, used their talents to give members of the 9.00 am service a musical treat. It was made more sweet by knowing the challenges they had overcome and as they expressed their joy through their music. One lady, after attending our service, declared with great joy, that she was 'giving her life to the Lord!'

Rosalie said, 'The thing they need most is love, support and acceptance'. We know that Jesus is the one that gives that constant love and support. The group say they love coming to Glynde and we pray that they see the love of Jesus reflected in our interactions with them.

This is the story of the building redevelopment activity so far...

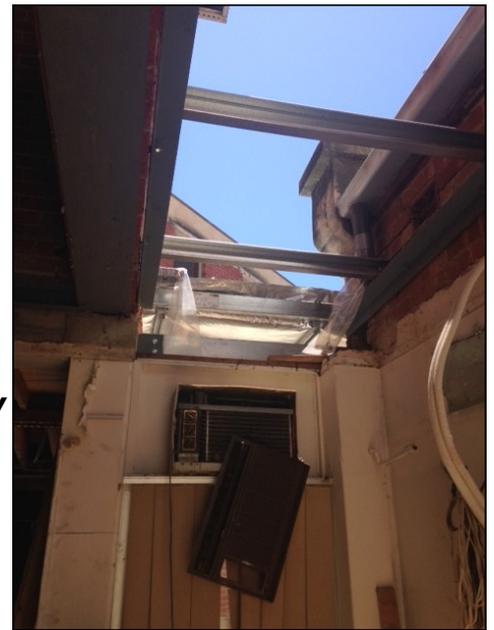

First a great big hole and then a lift shaft

The front is going out towards the street.

The narthex gets demolished even further as preparations are well underway to install the sky light.

That crane was very impressive as more heavy lifting was done.

The children, during English, thought their structure was equally impressive!

Must be catching!
